Homily: "Jacob's Ladder" Rev David Smithson

Morning Tea: Kate & Charlotte

Jacob upset his whole family so much he was exiled for his own safety. Jacob was a cheater. He cheated because he thought God was far away from him. Jacob had the same thought of God that a lot of people have today—a distant God in heaven who wound up the universe like a giant clock, set it running, and then busied himself with other things. To Jacob, God was too big, too almighty to ever be concerned about someone like him. We all feel that way sometimes. "Maybe God loves me, I know the Bible says he does. But everyone's got problems, and he's got to take care of billions of people. How can God have time to worry about me?" God bless, David
